NARRATIVE DESCRIPTION

The Fort Harrison National Cemetery is located at 8620 Varina Road in eastern Henrico County, Virginia, eight miles southeast of the city of Richmond. The site is rectangular in form and is enclosed by a brick wall approximately 4 feet 6 inches high (1,102 linear feet). The main entrance is located along the east wall facing Varina Road. It consists of two pedestrian iron gates that are part of the original wall and a 10-foot-wide vehicular iron gate that was added in 1941. In the center of the cemetery is a 30-foot grass circle, on which a flagpole has been erected.

The cemetery was established in May 1866, with six burial sections. The graves were originally marked by headboards, painted white, and properly lettered. The boards were later replaced with upright marble markers. The cemetery was officially closed on March 7, 1967. A small number of interments still occur yearly, including interments in occupied and reserved graves and interments of cremated remains.

As of January 31, 1995, there were 1,103 gravesites used for the interment of 1,511 casketed remains and 8 sites used for the interment of 11 cremated remains. Two casketed sites (both reserved) are still available, and 44 sites remain available for the interment of cremated remains. Of the 1,522 total interments, 583 are unknown Civil War soldiers. Four prisoners of war are interred among the unknown from the Civil War. A Medal of Honor recipient, Private George A. Buchanan, is buried in Section A, Grave 224. He served with Company G of the 148th New York Infantry and was mortally wounded on September 29, 1864, at Chapin's Farm, Virginia, while attacking a Confederate battery.

The superintendent's lodge was constructed in 1871 from a design by Quartermaster General Montgomery C. Meigs and is Second Empire in style. It is an L-shaped, rubble-stone structure with a slate mansard roof. The main portion is one and one-half stories high with dormer windows projecting from the mansard roof. The first floor contains a living room, dining room, kitchen, hallway, office, and a screened porch. The ceilings are approximately eleven feet high. The upper story contains two bedrooms and a bath. The lodge also contains a basement. The windows are six-over-six double-hung sash on the first story, while the upper story windows are casement with two panes in each casement. A single lean-to kitchen was added around 1900.

There is a monument, 7 feet 6 inches in height, made of an original cast iron seacoast artillery tube, secured by a concrete base. The cast bronze plaque formerly affixed to the monument, which has since been stolen, contained the following inscription:

Fort Harrison
Established May 1866
Interments 814
Known 239
Unknown 575

Records regarding this monument focus on its size and the inscription on the bronze plaque formerly affixed to the monument. No information is available as to the name of the manufacturer.

At the rear of the cemetery is a brick service building, 13 feet 6 inches by 45 feet 6 inches, constructed in 1932. The roof is clad with asphalt shingles (originally tin). Public restrooms are also located in this building. A brick oil house, 8 feet 5 inches by 8 feet, was constructed in 1936. Its roof is also clad with asphalt shingles.

The numbers shown for contributing resources within the property reflect the following:

Buildings: Lodge, service building, oil house

Sites: Cemetery

Structures: Gate, perimeter wall

NARRATIVE STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Fort Harrison National Cemetery is significant under Criteria A and C, and is an important component of the multiple property submission of Civil War Era National Cemeteries. It is significant under Criterion A because of its association with the Civil War and under Criterion C, because the lodge represents a distinctive prototypical design by Quartermaster General Montgomery C. Meigs, who was acclaimed as a master architect of civil works projects for the Quartermaster Corps.

From June 1864 until April 1865, siege operations before Petersburg commanded the chief attention of General Ulysses S. Grant and the Army of the Potomac. Several attempts were made to reach Richmond from north of the James River. Forts Harrison and Gilmer, two strongly fortified positions in the outer defense of the city, were the objectives of a surprise attack made by Union forces during the early morning hours of September 29, 1864. General Grant had also sent the Tenth and Eighteenth Corps north of the James River to keep General Robert E. Lee's army busy, so that the Confederates could not send reinforcements either to the South Side Railroad or to Lieutenant General Jubal Early in Shenandoah Valley. The Eighteenth Corps advanced rapidly and, before eight o'clock that morning, General George Stannard's division took Fort Harrison a major Confederate bastion in the defense line, and some of the surrounding entrenchments. The following day, Confederates prepared to counterattack, with Lee personally directing the assaults. Despite repeated counterattacks by the Confederate troops under Lee, Fort Harrison would remain in Union hands until the evacuation of Richmond in April 1865. The fort was renamed Fort Burnham, in honor of Union General Hiram Burnham, who was killed at Chaffin's Farm during the Federal attack on Fort Harrison. This battle was significant, as it was one of the first times black soldiers had been used in battle. It was by the orders of General Benjamin Butler, and they proved they were fit soldiers. With the cessation of hostilities, a site near Fort Harrison was appropriated for use by the United States as a national cemetery. Remains interred in the cemetery after its establishment were recovered from the battlefields of Forts Harrison and Gilmer, and from some forty locations within a five-mile area. Many of those buried at Fort Harrison are black Union soldiers who fell at the battle.

The cemetery was established in May 1866 and comprises 1.5 acres. On March 26, 1869, Alpheus W. Childrey and Harriet Ann Childrey conveyed .462 acre to the United States for the sum of $100; on May 14, 1872, $175.32 was paid for a parcel of land containing 1.044 acres deeded by Mattie E. and Francis E. Cox. On June 28, 1873, A. W. Childrey conveyed, by deed, to the United States an additional strip containing .043 acre for $20.00, making a total of 1.5 acres at a cost of $295.32.
